

Who will ever forget the 6th of January 2005, when Nelson Mandela revealed to the world that his son passed away from Aids?

Mr Mandela called for renewed efforts to fight Aids, challenging the taboo that surrounds the disease in Africa.

World Aids Day reminds us all that HIV has not gone away, and that there are many things still to be done. This day is to also remind us of those who are affected by this disease and those that have lost the battle against AIDS.

Missionvale Care Centre, established by Sister Ethel Normoyle of the Little Company of Mary, seeks to address, with her staff, the needs of the people who, in addition to the sufferings of the poor, now have to contend with the HIV virus which is decimating the population.

Missionvale has one of the highest rates of unemployment and HIV infections in the region, its population is estimated at 130 000.

None of us are exempt from Aids!

Face reality - you could be at risk of being infected by one moment of pleasure.
